Snow crab, also known as Queen crab, is a popular and affordable crab species. It is widely found in large populations in both the North Atlantic and North Pacific oceans, making it a favorite among crab lovers. The main commercial fisheries are off Alaska in winter and off Newfoundland in summer. The population of snow crab varies each year due to weather and water conditions, but the Alaskan snow crab has a green Best Choice rating from Monterey Bay Aquarium Seafood Watch, and the North Atlantic fisheries are MSC certified, ensuring its sustainability.
